PEALE'S MUSEUM.

AND GALLERY OF FINE ARTS, Broadway, opposite the Park.

From the great interest excited by the exhibition of the only RHINOCEROS ever brought to this country, the proprietor of the Museum is induced to keep it for a short time longer, for the gratification of the curious. The Rhinoceros is one of the largest heaviest and most powerful animals known—it died on its passage from India to England. Amongst the late additions made to the Museum is a fine collection of South American and British Birds and Quadrupeds and a very fine Egyptian Mummy, &c. The Museum is open all day to visitors and brilliantly illuminated every evening with gas lights, and at 8 o'clock, the Philosophical Experiments commence in the lecture room.
