THE MENAGERIE AT BELL VUE GARDENS.—During the last few days some very important additions have been made to the above menagerie; and a great additional attraction has thus been secured to Whit-week visitors. The additions comprise a male and a female rhinoceros (said to be the first pair ever kept together in England); a pair of young camels, from the Crimea; a jaguar, or South American tiger; and a pair of ostriches, eight feet high. The female rhinoceros, which is much larger than the male, is about three parts grown; and both are good specimens, in excellent health, and very docile.

TODMORDEN.—GREENWOOD v. HEYWORTH.—This, an adjourned case from last court, was again heard at Hasling-
