BIG GAME SHOOTING RECORD.

A world's record in big game shooting is claimed by a sportsman in Assam in a communication to the Calcutta "Statesman":—"I shot a tiger and tigress with a right and left barrel," writes the sportsman. "Both animals were charging my elephant and came out of high jungle almost together. The tigress I shot through the head, and she rolled over dead, the tiger (a huge one) I shot through the neck and he collapsed. This happened when I was shooting in the Maharajah of Mymensingh's camp. I shot two rhinoceroses with a right and left barrel. The bigger of the two animals was shot through the neck and dropped at once. The second one charged off, but I got my left barrel into the back of his left shoulder blade, which penetrated the neck. This animal ran about 300 yards and dropped."
