

December 1909

Image © THE BRITISH LIBRARY BOARD. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

Probably no animal in the Zoological gardens attracts more curiosity and attention than the rhinoceros as it slowly makes its heavy way round its enclosure. Two new fine specimens of Indian rhinoceros (R. unicornis) have just been added to the collection at the Zoological gardens. They have been obtained from Nepal and are on view at the rhinoceros's enclosure.