

Two poor relations of the colobus family, distinguished for their lack of thumbs. They are shown alive

This rhinoceros was caught with the lasso, but an ounce and a half of lead was necessary to give him his quietus

The marabou-stork, where the ladies' neck-wraps come from

A cheeta, or hunting leopard. It is trained to the chase in India, but in Africa is hunted as a beast of prey

The oryx, the most beautiful of the antelopes and dreaded even by lions

The wild dog, a destructive beast of prey but amenable to discipline when captured

A Grant's gazelle, a rare species of antelope much prized by hunters

"TALLY-HO!" IN DARKEST AFRICA

THESE PHOTOGRAPHS SHOW SOME OF THE TROPHIES OBTAINED BY PAUL J. RAINEY, WHO WAS THE FIRST MAN TO HUNT LIONS AND OTHER AFRICAN PREDATORY ANIMALS WITH DOGS. MR. RAINEY IS NOW ON HIS WAY TO INDIA TO USE HIS PACK IN THE PURSUIT OF TIGERS