

Think a jaguar can do rhino art? Yes it can! A very creative artist from Oregon was willing to make me some etched glass rhinos. I don't know which is more exciting: the little rhinos or the color of the glass. Tiffany's eat your heart out! If you wish to order some glass - drinking glasses, candlestick holders and more, contact Jaguar Art Glass, 1473 McKinley St, Eugene, OR 97402. (503) 484-9829.

Wow! Wow! Wow! Look what I got off the World Wide Web recently. Pictures of rhinos! Go to "What's Cool" on Netscape. Get into Yahoo. Surf 'til you find animals and keep surfing until you see rhinos then download away. I also found some great photos of the five species from the Vertebrate Animals-Collections. The images are links to larger scale color images (up to 160KB). Forget the home site but you could try e-mail to: nussbaumer@nimbe.unibe.ch.

Could Running Rhino & Co. be at it again? I just got a note card from a friend in San Jose and it's a whimsical African rhino watercolor. Drop a line to Ian and David and see if you can order directly from them. Running Rhino & Co, PO Box 24843, Seattle, WA 98124. (Printed on acid-free recycled paper with vegetable-based inks)

One of our favorite rhinophiles, Bob Neillie, publishes a column in a wellness newsletter (The Wellness Net•Work). In "RHINOS - Rules, Hints, Ideas & Notions on Sales", Bob shares his secrets of successful garage sales & flea markets, e.g. "BAKED GOODS - A yummy collection of home-made pastries. If you plan on selling them at your garage/yard sale or rummage sale, be sure to find out if you need a license or permit from your local officials. (Some officials respond well to a donut and a cup of coffee.) I personally have never met a baked good that I didn't like. Do you know why you feel stressed at times? Spell "stressed" backwards!"

"RHINOS -
Rules, Hints, Ideas
& Notions on Sales"

Bob Neillie, Wellness Reproductions, Inc. 23945 Mercantile Road, Suite W2, Beachwood, OH 44122.

Baby. Baby. Baby.

Remember the story of Joy Adamson and Elsa the lioness? Jane Goodall and her chimps and Dian Fossey and her gorillas? Add Anna Merz to the list of staunch conservationists. Anna rescues a female black rhino in February, 1985 at Lewa Wildlife Conservancy (remember Bowling for Rhinos?). Anna raised the calf, named Samia and it was not unusual to see woman and rhino taking daily constitutional on the grounds of the reserve. Fast forward to April, 1995 and another blessed event. Samia gives birth to her first calf, a son named Samuel. To read more about Samia and Samuel, subscribe to the Rhino Review, publication of the Rhino Trust, dedicated to protecting rhinos in their native habitat. All donations are gratefully accepted; contributors of $25 or more receive the Rhino Review. They also offer some unique products for sale including a fine art print of a black rhino and the paper sculpture (recycled denim) note cards of Mark Maglio's fine depiction of a black rhino. Write to: Karen Kane, The Rhino Trust, 4045 N. Massachusetts Ave., Portland, OR 97227.

Denver Zoo has a relatively new addition. Baby Mshindi was born in November, 1993 to Onyx (f) and Jasper (m). Denver has played a major role in captive reproduction of the black rhino.

Denver has nuggets (and I don't mean basketball!!!) In addition to the live rhinos at the zoo, Denver has a few interesting stories with rhinobilia. At the Tabor Center in downtown Denver, there is a store called Africa House where rhinos abound. If serpentine is your pleasure, this store has quite a variety. I bought one so heavy it had to be shipped. Serpentine is a cleansing & protective stone hand carved by Shona Peoples of Zimbabwe. (Tabor Center #322, 1201 16th St. Mall, Denver, CO 80202 (303) 534-6460)